

PRESS RELEASE

HOLY MOSES! TEMPLE ISRAEL 5TH GRADE TO MEET TEN COMMANDMENTS SCRIBE

In an unprecedented example of Biblical time travel, Moses is scheduled to meet with young reporters at Temple Israel for an informal press conference on Sunday, November 3.

Moses, a bearded prophet best known for leading the Jewish people out of Egypt after 400 un-fun years of slavery, will be in Boston on vacation. Besides Temple Israel, he has planned to take trips to Faneuil Hall, Bunker Hill Monument and the Swan Boats.

Among the questions he will be happy to discuss are:

- How did you do that trick with the Red Sea?
- Did it take long to write down everything in the Five Books of Moses?
- Why don't you have a last name?

Of course, Moses also will be delighted to talk about the Ten Plagues, the Passover Seder, the fight he had with the Egyptian taskmaster, what it was like to look at the Promised Land but never get there, and any other incident in the Torah.

Moses has never held a press conference in America before. He has agreed to come to Temple Israel, mainly because of 5th grade teacher Stacy Grossman.

“Without the Ten Commandments, we would just be a regular group of people living on a regular piece of land. My sources tell me that Morah Stacy does a fantastic job teaching about ethical monotheism,” Moses said.

“I think that Judaism is a religion, a culture and a way of life. Not only does Morah Stacy believe that too, but she also hosts a wild game of Jeopardy!” the prophet added.
